ABOUT USF

One of the 20 largest universities in the United States and still growing, the University of South Florida has built a solid reputation as a leader in learning, offering comprehensive state-of-the-art, student-centered programs. With growing prestige and a dedicated faculty, including more than 75 faculty Fulbright Scholars and 42 endowed chairs, USF has become a research powerhouse.

Located in vibrant Tampa Bay, one of the fastest-growing metropolitan areas of the nation, USF has formed vital partnerships with business leaders and organizations throughout the region, and contributes to the well-being of its immediate urban neighborhoods through vast networks of social research and service projects.

As one of the top 50 public research universities in the country, USF's fast growing reputation as a superior academic institution was formally acknowledged in 1998 by the Florida Board of Regents, which named USF a "Research I University." That new title is a direct result of the university's outstanding graduate programs and research, which in 1998-99 alone generated more than $161 million in contracts and grants.

Faculty and student scholarship and research are supported by an outstanding library that contains more than 2.3 million volumes and that is the electronic "Virtual Library" for the State University System of Florida. The latter provides links to tens of thousands of computer data bases around the world.

Founded in 1956, USF opened its doors in 1960 to 2000 students. Today the university serves approximately 35,000 students — with nearly 200 programs at the undergraduate, master's, specialty and doctoral levels, including the M.D. Entering freshmen boast an average SAT score of approximately 1,020 and a grade point average of 3.5.

USF's commitment to inclusion is reflected in its student body. African Americans, Latin and Asian students comprise 26 percent of USF students. A growing contingent of international students, now representing well over 100 countries, demonstrates the university's strong geographic influence and dedication to the principles of a global economy.

Collectively, our students are among the best and brightest at Florida universities, with greater-than-ever numbers of National Merit, National Achievement and National Hispanic Scholars. They are taught by some 2,000 highly-regarded faculty who are products of the world's most prestigious colleges, universities and research institutes.

The university's 175,000 graduates contribute to society in numerous professional and civic activities.

Those who live in the Tampa Bay area alone would fill Tampa's professional football stadium (Raymond James Stadium, which is also home field for the Bulls' NCAA Division I football team and the 2001 Super Bowl).

USF is big in size as well as stature. Its annual operating budget is close to $750-million. One of the largest employers in the Tampa area, its economic impact on the Tampa Bay region totals $2 billion annually.

In the past 40-plus years, USF has grown into a network of regional campuses in Tampa, St. Petersburg, Sarasota and Lakeland, serving the West Central Florida region. The main campus in Tampa covers 1,700 acres, housing more than 320 buildings, which exceed 6 million gross square feet in size. Its libraries hold some 1.4 million volumes as well as a vast computer link to hundreds of library data bases and international communications through the Internet and the World Wide Web.

The largest of USF's colleges, Arts and Sciences, offers nearly 50 undergraduate degrees and provides special programs that prepare students for schools of medicine and other related healthcare fields. With an enrollment of more than 12,500, Arts and Sciences is larger than many other entire universities. The college's geology program is one of the largest and highest-ranked in the Southeast. Its chemistry program is one of the top producers of chemistry graduates in the nation. Cutting-edge programs include aging studies and environmental science and policy. Its marine science programs are among the most prestigious in America.

Business is the university's most popular major, outpacing education, engineering, social sciences and psychology. Special programs affiliated with the College of Business Administration include the Cooperative Education Program, the Center for Economic and Management Research and the Small Business Development Center. An International Study Program with an emphasis on Latin America prepares students for the growing global economy.

The largest urban education college in the country, USF's College of Education ranks fifth in the nation. The College produces more teachers than any other Florida university; nearly 100 percent of the college's graduates remain in the state. College facilities include the Educational Research Center for Child Development, the Gus A. Stavros Center for Free Enterprise and Economic Education and the award-winning Sun Coast Area Teacher Training (SCATT) program. The college is the only one in the state to operate its own charter school for at-risk youngsters and also works closely with Hillsborough County Public School's Pizzo Elementary, located on the USF campus.

The College of Engineering is cultivating a world of new ideas through state-of-the-art laboratories, low faculty-to-student ratios and a focus on cooperative learning. Faculty have set international standards for electric vehicle research and silicon chip technology. The college's model distance learning programs provide education at remote sites around the state. Some 300 engineers have earned master's degrees through these programs. A strong commitment to diversity has resulted in a high percentage of women and racial and ethnic minorities at the student and faculty levels. Each year, the college hosts the annual Engineering Expo, the largest and oldest student-produced engineering exhibition in the country.

The cultural hub of the university, the College of Fine Arts is home to the departments of Art, Dance and Theatre, in addition to the School of Music, the Contemporary Art Museum and the nationally-renowned Institute for Research in Art/Graphicstudio. The college offers courses and internships in New York City, Paris and London, and a special program in African Art. The renowned British International Theatre program (BRIT) brings British professional artists-in-residence to campus. The college also hosts a biannual Suncoast Music Education National Symposium and an annual jazz residency program.

The College of Nursing has a long history of student excellence. The College maintains affiliation agreements with more than 100 health care agencies in USF's 15 county service area, offering students a wide range of clinical experience in both in patient and community facilities. Nursing faculty and students provide thousands of hours of volunteer care at such locations as the J.L. Young Apartments Center for Elder Health and the Judeo-Christian Clinic in West Tampa, as well as with the center for Family Health, a non-profit organization. Faculty members engage in a wide range of research in AIDS, aging, cancer and maternal/child health, which further enhances students' education and clinical practice.

USF's College of Medicine is among the best in the nation in educating physicians for its home state. More than 60 percent of its residents remain in Florida. The college is renowned for cardiology, ophthalmology and immunology. Through affiliations with Tampa General Hospital, the USF-based Moffitt Cancer Center and Research Institute (Florida's only National Cancer Institute-designated center) and All Children's Hospital in St. Petersburg, medical students train on the cutting edge of trauma, pediatrics and cancer treatment. The college places an increasing focus on primary care. Admission is highly selective. Each year, the college receives more than 2,000 applications to fill 96 available positions.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH FLORIDA - 2000/2001 UNDERGRADUATE CATALOG

USF has the only College of Public Health in Florida. It is one of only 27 fully accredited public health colleges in the United States. Within the college, the Legislature created the Florida Public Health Information Center (FPHIC) to serve as a state-wide center for policy-oriented, health services research. USF's master's of Public Health program takes a multi-disciplinary approach to public health—exploring the social, behavioral, legal, medical and economic factors affecting public health. Areas of concentration include community and family health, epidemiology and biostatistics, environmental and occupational health, and health policy and management.

Recognizing the school's location in one of the state's largest metropolitan areas, the School of Architecture and Community Design prepares students to find creative solutions to problems faced by aging and emerging cities. Design projects have included low-maintenance portable classrooms, water retention projects and urban renovation that addresses traffic, parking, environmental and community needs.

The Louis de la Parte Institute is Florida's only mental health research Institute. Its Center for HIV Education and Research has trained more than 50,000 medical and mental health professionals throughout Florida. The Institute also trains more than 6,000 child welfare and juvenile justice staff members annually. The de la Parte Institute is one of five national sites competitively selected by the Public Health Service to rigorously document the costs and outcomes of managed care services to adults with severe mental illness.

Along with the regional campuses in St. Petersburg, Sarasota and Lakeland, USF has a new joint use site with Pasco-Hernando Community College. Altogether, USF's campuses are within reach of more than 3 million people in a 10-county area.

The St. Petersburg campus is nationally recognized for its graduate program in marine science. The campus also houses a Center for Ethics and the Knight Oceanographic Research Center. Noteworthy programs include a respected graduate program in journalism studies and related writing components such as the Florida Suncoast Writers' Conference. The U.S. Geological Survey's Center for Coastal Geology, the Florida Institute of Oceanography and a branch of the Department of Environmental Protection are located here.

The Sarasota-Manatee campus includes New College and is adjacent to the state-owned Ringling Museum. USF at Sarasota has significant responsibility for historic and environmental preservation of the beautiful Ringling and Caples estates. New College is a residential, highly selective and innovative liberal arts college that made the top category of Princeton Review's exclusive rating of college admissions competitiveness. Kiplinger's Personal Finance Magazine ranks New College in the top 25 public university "best values" in the nation.

USF at Lakeland is designed to take advantage of advanced educational technologies. Along with traditional instruction, the campus has television receiving and transmitting labs for individualized computer instruction.

The facilities of the USF Tampa campus, now including more than 200 major buildings, are currently valued at more than $300 million. The buildings are of similar modern architectural design and all are completely air conditioned. The Tampa campus has a variety of recreational facilities, including: a gymnasium that features a weight room and natatorium; a 400-meter track; two outdoor swimming pools; 22 tennis courts; six handball/racquetball courts; an 18-hole golf course; two parcourses, one for running and one for walking; one baseball and four softball fields; four outdoor basketball and volleyball courts; and a new multi-million dollar recreation center.

In St. Petersburg, students can enjoy an outdoor pool or take part in the waterfront program that features sailboats and canoes available for use. In Sarasota, there is a 400-meter track and a new library.

The campus atmosphere is informal. Students and faculty dress casually and enjoy an unusually close relationship. Some classes are even held outside to take advantage of the area's extraordinary climate (average annual temperature is 72°F). Most buildings have open hallways, which blend colorful interiors with spacious exteriors, symbolically and architecturally suggesting the casual accessibility that has become a USF trademark.
